THEME OF THE YEAR: PIVOT

The onset of the COVID-19 pandemic has brought challenges for all of us, and it seems that the one thing we can all count on is constant change.

Our organization's mission focuses on in-person, community-led programs; however, the need to be cognizant of the risks and restrictions on travel given the widespread growth of the pandemic, has essentially halted progress on any projects abroad. After discussing Nepal's circumstances with our in-country liaison at the Kevin Rohan Memorial Eco Foundation (KRMEF) in Kahare, front porch made the pivot to raise awareness—and funds—here in the United States to help connect essential resources to the people of KRMEF's surrounding communities.

In the spirit of giving that accompanies the holiday season, we offer three initiatives that, with your gift of support, extend much needed aid to these families. We thank you and wish you health and prosperity for the coming year!

covid-19 relief

In the rural areas of Nepal, the daily wages for workers have decreased significantly, if not stopped altogether. Widespread positive coronavirus cases and the partial shut down of local businesses and transportation have made it very difficult to get food and other life necessities to families who live outside a city's reach. Your gift will help relieve food insecurity in these communities.

tree of hope

Access to fresh fruits and vegetables must be intentionally created and maintained in Nepal's rural communities. The Tree of Hope program aims to "promote health and the environment through a synergy of man and land," through by planting fruit trees along the community's roads. Through your gift, these families can create long-term solutions for both the availability of fruit and nurturing the earth by planting trees that are complementary and/or native to Nepal.

students in need

Of the 133 students that attend the Waldorf-inspired school at KRMEF, 22 of these children receive scholarship aid. Many parents are simply unable to cover the costs of their child(ren)'s education due to economic hardships surrounding the pandemic, which then impacts the community as a whole. Your gift of support to the scholarship fund helps a child stay in school.
